Ngā Whakatūpatotanga - Taking Care

Approach: Station
Focus: Safety rules when using equipment.
Resources: 3 pictures.

Picture 1. This person is going to use a craft knife.
Whakaaturia te pikitia1:
Ka whakamahi māripi toi tēnei tangata.

1. How can people make sure they don't get hurt when using a craft knife?

Me aha ngā tāngata, kia kore ai rātou e whara, i a rātou e whakamahi ana i te māripi toi?
keep body parts clear of knife
$75 \quad 50$
other valid response 4835

Picture 2. This person is going to boil an egg.
Whakaaturia te pikitia 2:
Ka kōhua hēki tēnei tangata.
2. How can people make sure they don't get hurt when boiling an egg?

Me aha ngā tāngata, kia kore ai rātou e whara, i i rātou e kōhua ana i te hēki? pot handle away from edge of stove other valid response

Picture 3. This person is going to use a hot glue gun.
Whakaaturia te pikitia 3:
Ka whakamahi pū kāpia wera tēnei tangata.
3. How can people make sure they don't get hurt when using a hot glue gun?

Me aha ngā tāngata, kia kore ai rātou e whara, i a rātou e whakamahi ana itētahi pū kāpia wera?
keep body away from hot nozzle/glue
other valid response 5441
mentioned adult help or supervision for any of these situations
$22 \quad 30$

Commentary:

Māori students in general education (GEd) settings scored statistically significantly higher than did Māori students in Māori immersion (MI) settings. There were large differences for the craft knife and the glue gun, with much smaller differences for boiling an egg.

